ABOUT ICRI

Concrete repair and restoration has developed into a vibrant industry in the more than 30 years since a core group formed the International Concrete Repair Institute (ICRI) in 1988.

We pride ourselves on being a growing industry with a diverse mixture of repair and restoration professionals, their suppliers and customers, all sharing the same goals: to improve the quality of repair, restoration, and protection of concrete and other structures. In doing so, ICRI members shape the organization and pave the way for the growth and success of the industry.

BENEFITS OF ICRI

NETWORKING

The greatest value of any professional organization is the opportunity to network with others in your industry. The people you meet and build relationships with will be the ones you can call upon when in need and the ones who may recommend you as a contact for a potential job. The more involved you are with ICRI member activities, locally, nationally, and globally, the more likely you are to be called upon by other members for guidance. This recognition will propel you and your company to the forefront of the concrete repair industry. We know networking is a key component for our members, so we strive to create a variety of opportunities for you. Locally, you can network with others through our chapters.

INDUSTRY RECOGNITION

ICRI members are recognized around the world as companies and individuals that provide the utmost quality in their products and services. This recognition leads prospective customers to you through ICRI services such as our online membership directory. ICRI members are very proud of the organization they represent and know their membership brings with it a special camaraderie with others in the industry and a high level of responsibility to serve the industry.

Knowledge is our strength and ICRI develops and delivers programs, products, and services that provide knowledge, build skills, and validate expertise for a wide range of members.
